FUNNY FACE introduced by ISAAC MIZRAHI!

Award-winning fashion designer, author, and television personality Isaac Mizrahi will introduce the 9:20 show of FUNNY FACE on Monday, July 2.

Isaac Mizrahi introduced the 9:20 PM showing of Funny Face at the Film Forum on Monday, July 2, 2012. Journalist David Noh was in attendance and reported that, aside from praising the film, Mizrahi also gave a first-hand account of his experience working on an Audrey Hepburn photo shoot with photographer Richard Avedon—who, of course, had served as a visual consultant on Funny Face. Mizrahi recalled how intimidated he was by Avedon, just as Avedon told him he was intimidated by all the big names on Funny Face in 1957. A world-class control freak, Avedon told Mizrahi he thought the Paramount bigwigs poisoned him so he would be sick and laid up and unable to come to the set to “meddle.”

"Dones's style, with his insistent camera moves and his innate understanding of human movement, will forever be timeless and beautiful."
 - New York Magazine

"Hepburn's centerpiece is a dance of defiance at a cavernous café on the far side of Montmartre, where Donen's prowling tracking shots encircle the jaunty angularity of Hepburn (in easily the film's most fashionable outfit: jet-black mock routine and Capri pants) as her routine moves from pretension to sensuality to playful athleticism."
